

Amy Dunivan

Director of Development

Amy is a professional musician (oboe) with a wide range of business core competencies in philanthropic development, program planning & execution, budgeting & financial analysis, and people management. Experienced responsibilities and areas of oversight that enable institutions to expand and strengthen in both size and scope. Amy is motivated and driven to help organizations thrive, addicted to learning and works incredibly well under pressure. She has a proven track record of achievement and a reputation for positive collaboration. Amy is a strategic thinker with the ability to adapt to shifting priorities and provide sound business insight for building operational excellence.

Amy grew up in Jonesboro Arkansas and attended Arkansas State University where she received her B.M. in Oboe Pedagogy and Performance. She then attended Southern Methodist University in Dallas Texas for her M.M. in Oboe Performance and Pedagogy.

Most recently, Amy worked at Highland Park United Methodist Church in the Outreach/Missions Department & Music & Arts (Sanctuary Worship) Department and held the positions of Executive Director to the David R. Davidson Tower Arts Series, Instrumental Director, and Assistant to the Director of Music & Sanctuary Worship. She is the founder of the Caledonia Chamber Winds.